SOIL

Our vineyard and cellar are located 450 meters above sea level in the highest sector of the Cachapoal Valley, at the foot hills of the Andes Mountains, 100 km south of Santiago. The vineyard has a 100 mm-layer of loam soil-one with similar proportions of sand, clay, and silt-followed by stones with excellent drainage and exceptional conditions for vine growing.

CLIMATE

This area has a Mediterranean climate with cold winters and an average precipitation of 520 mm per year, primarily during the winter months. Summers present average high temperatures of 30°C and lows of 9°C at night, which allows the grapes to ripen slowly. The absence of rainfall during the ripening period enables the harvest to wait until the grapes ripen to optimal condition.

HARVEST

The 2010 vintage was influenced by the "El Niño" phenomenon that generates higher temperatures in the Pacific Ocean and greater winter rainfall over the land. The grapes were hand picked and the best were carefully selected for the final wine.

■ Winemaker Notes

Our ALWA Limited Edition Cabernet Sauvignon is expressive, complex, and offers a long finish. Very elegant on the nose, this wine offers notes of truffle, black currant, dark chocolate, and coffee. It is generous on the palate, with well-rounded tannins and tremendous persistence. The recommended serving temperatures is 16°-18°C, and it is ideal with grilled meats, refined dishes, and fine cheeses.
